

VIP Enforced Budgets

Corruption, fraud, and waste have always been a serious threat to the taxpayer's dime. The AFFEERCE revolution not only eliminates government-imposed taxation, but government corruption, government fraud, and government waste. The cop who keeps everything kosher is the VIP, the same system that manages the VIP\$.

A budget is a "smart" document that is associated with one or more VIP identities and a single VIP account.

The people behind the identities approve, modify, or delete the budget, or make expenditures from the budget. Approve, modify, delete, and spend are access rights that define the relationship between each identity and the budget.

Each of the four concepts, approval, modification, deletion, and spending are associated with a quantifier: all, one, two, majority, super-majority, plurality, or super-plurality.

For instance, if eleven people have approval access rights and the quantifier is majority, six people must approve for the budget to be approved. For a quantifier of super-majority (2/3 rounded up), eight people must approve for the budget to be approved.

Generally, the quantifier is one or two for spend access. Once approved, the budget can be modified by the appropriate quantifier of those with modification access. To delete a budget, a disposition must also be specified for any funds remaining in the budget's account.

An undo action can be performed by the same group and quantifier of people who performed the original action, provided no goods have been purchased in the interim and sufficient funds are in the disposition account to replenish a deleted account.

As an example, level-3 cellular councils have, on average, 11 members. A super-majority is required to approve or delete a budget, while a super-plurality (with a quorum) is required to modify a budget. Level-3 personnel with spend access rights can use the budget to make expenditures. All budget transactions are public and constituents are alerted for approvals, modifications, and deletions.

In another example, commons trust charters allow a super-plurality of the people in a dominion the right to approve a budget funded with a consumption tax on VIP$ purchases from non-Earth-Dividend accounts.

Once all budgeted purchases are made, the tax disappears with the sunset. Consumption tax budgets will typically be written and approved by the dominion's cellular council prior to ratification by a dominion's voters. The package to be voted on will also include who has modification, deletion, and spending access rights.

Line items are only allowed for quantifiable labor and materials. Generic services and salaries categories are illegal for cellular government revenue from the Earth Dividend and super-plurality-approved taxation. They are also not allowed in budgeting Citizen Investor loans. See module Budgets and Services to learn how the government and startups can handle variable expenses.

Budgets are composed of line items. Each line item consists of a quantity authorized, item size, quantity purchased, and product code(s). Generic product code is given if brand is optional. Both generic and specific given if brand is preferred. Only the specific product code is given if brand is required.

Product description(s) will be filled in from the product code databases. Price and vendor are only included if a vendor has guaranteed a price for future purchase below the average market price.

12/06/29 2:28 PM 1 can Great Value Tomato Condensed Soup 10.75 oz, $0.76 total, $0.76/can. UPC078742371573 at Walmart, 2610 N. Prospect Ave. Champaign IL (ACCT: M07874-427) by Mary Rothquest, Champaign (12/20/04)

This budgeted line item authorizes the purchase of 80 10.75 oz. cans of tomato soup, with Campbell's Tomato Soup preferred. The generic is identified by the FDA product ID, 38BEE27, and the preferred product by UPC 05101108. Costco has promised the soup at 75 cents a can. Line items will contain other detail fields not shown, as specified in the business plan.

All transactions are displayed under the line item. This is the record of the 4 cans already purchased, 3 by John and 1 by Mary, a minute later, at the local Walmart. No reasons for these purchases were given in the transactions, perhaps a teacher and their significant other were experimenting with a dinner recipe.
