

Worldwide Federation

In theory, the Phase II hyperdeflation will drive all land into the commons trust and all nations to federate. The forces of human nature driving the transition are so compelling that it is hard to imagine resistance.

The most despotic landed oligarch will gladly trade rule over a country in poverty and chaos for £200 billion. Who among the industrialized nations would disparage a democracy that provides valuable Elsie for the landed classes, the end of poverty, and a level playing field for everyone else, coupled with excellent opportunities for enterprise and progress? Indeed, the only way to survive the deflating Elsie during the transition is to convert all worthless fiat currency to Elsie, provide an Earth Dividend for all citizens and local governments, and receive anti-deflation infusions of Elsie for intellectual property royalties. All of this is only possible with federation.

Still, it is not impossible to imagine China establishing its own Federation, with its currency backed by land in the Communist Party Commons Trust, available to the highest bidder of ground rent with equal per capita distribution to party members and others deemed sufficiently loyal, minimal food and housing for everyone else, and distributed through a cellular democracy where only party members were eligible to be representatives.

While this would prolong the time to Worldwide Federation, it would not stop it. Political powers and other relics of debt-based capitalism, socialism, or oligarchy are parasitical features of land-based capitalism that can only wither away over time. There is simply no class of people interested in preserving these features. If China begins as its own Federation, in a generation, it will confederate.

A premature end to deflation before Worldwide Federation does not entirely take the heat off non-federated nations. Competing successfully with the Federation economy will be difficult, where real wages are nominal wages plus the Earth Dividend. More than that, there is no taxation on productive labor.

Some benefits of land-based capitalism will be felt around the world. These include the Earth Dividend, land liberation in Phase II dominions, and, more importantly, the liberation of content. No other intellectual property scheme can coexist with free content, even if the scheme originates in a non-federated nation.

People everywhere in the world will download their content for £0.00. It can be no other way. Artists and inventors in non-federated nations will still receive royalties as computed by the Federation VSGs. However, many economic benefits enumerated in The Amazing List can only be realized in a federated nation.

Non-federated nations are faced with another problem as well. Wealthy and middle-class individuals outside the Federation will pay the citizenship tax and emigrate from their home countries. This brain and capital drain will further increase the Federation's competitive advantage and increase poverty outside the Federation. This is not unethical.

Any community can enter Phase II. Any nation can federate and bring the Earth Dividend to all its citizens. Ethical failure lies with the tyrants in those nations that forbid land sales into the commons trust. As landed oligarchs, these tyrants also cheat themselves out of a fortune in Elsie's.

Worldwide Federation is inevitable. From the first purchase of land into the ABC Commons Trust until the day of Worldwide Federation, perhaps as soon as 40 years later, opposition to this goal will wither away. All social classes and all diverse cultures will come to join the chorus for Worldwide Federation—each for their reasons, but all for the same goal.

It shall come to pass that war will be replaced by trebler war; hunger, homelessness, and poverty will be wiped off the planet; land and content shall be liberated; freedom will reign; and humanity will blossom. As you read this, the initial machinery is already in place to begin this journey. However, a \$24 million profitable investment quickly turns this dream into reality. Will you be the hero?
